

Chapter One

It was a bright cold day in the old town, and the clocks were striking the hour while everyone waited by the long harbour wall for the boats to come back from the morning tide. This is a longer paragraph that wraps across several lines so that we can test paragraph re-assembly and hyphenation handling across lines.

A second paragraph starts here and continues for a while so that it also wraps across more than one line in the page.

Chapter Two

The second chapter begins with a short line.
